

The Widow

20-4-2009

She was a woman
She was some queen
She was something that, I'm sure
You've never seen, so... pure
She was shining oh she was
When she was smiling, man you better hide
You wouldn't bear the mere sight of her
You would cry from her – and you should

How she was moving,
And how she would do it
She said: don't – care about losing anything
Care about losing anyone at all
She was as free as one can be
She's in her body, when she's got
You in her eyes, you totally forgot
All about that paradise, you're lost
Paralyzed, you're just taken by, taken by...

She was a widow, she killed
Every fellow who dared to try to come
A little closer by in the dark
But she always thanked him for the try
Only she would not speak the truth
No no no that would have killed herself
All of her beauty be gone to hell
But she don't care, she feels so free – to lie
She's got the flair to honestly live the lie.

Woman, you loved me
Although you never could admit
Woman, you raped me
Although I never could admit
I was to be the stronger one as man
Always defending you,
In everything you did, your innocence
I always Saw you as part of my own Heart

Woman, I loved you

Although you never could allow
Woman, I tried to rape your lies into the truth
I failed completely, yes I bow and now
You've got me into court
To make me bow for the freedom
Of your love, your lie
Your body without love
Love without a body

She was a woman
She was some queen
She was something that, I'm sure
You've never seen, so... pure
I was down on my knees before her
And I didn't please her never
And so, now I am dead
But happily dead
For I knew her, oh I knew her
Woman, yes I knew you
Though I blew it for good
I showed the truth – I knew you

Woman, you may always lie
I'll always love you all my life
Woman you may always fly
I'll always love you, I'll just cry
Woman, you may always hide
I'll always find you, when I die
I'll lie and crawl and I'll recover
I will out of nothing breathe
Life into my death, I will
Resurrect you'll be surprised
Woman, you may always lie
I'll always love you as my bride
Woman, you may always try
To redefine love as you like

Woman, you may always lie
I'll always love you all your life
Woman you may always fly
I'll always love you, I'll just cry
Woman, you may always hide

I'll always find you, when I die
I'll lie and crawl and I'll recover
I will out of nothing breathe
Life into my death, I will
Resurrect you'll be surprised
Woman, you may always lie
I'll always love you as my Bride
Woman, you may always try
To redefine love as you like

Woman, you may always lie
I'll always love you all my life
Woman you may always fly
I'll always love you, I'll just cry